

V TRANSATLANTIC CONFERENCE AT BROWN UNIVERSITY

Call for Papers Futures (Transitions, Agencies, Translations)

The Transatlantic Project at Brown welcomes abstracts on new trends, topics, agents, and cultural artifacts that are configuring the immediacy of the future. Proposals on new ideas, debates and scenarios are expected. Also welcome are sessions on narratives of the new, young film and music, as well as sessions on blogs and electronic literature. Papers, in Spanish Catalan or English, may document a sense of the future as a process of translation, a state of bilingualism, and the rise of networks of communication. The conference is especially interested in, but not limited to, the perspectives of Cuban reforms and discussions on modernity in Peru. Proposals on ethical issues, political discourses, and class and cultural representations are also welcome.

Co-sponsored by Brown's Department of Hispanic Studies and Center for Latin American Studies, Instituto Cervantes in New York, Universidad de Guadalajara, TEC de Monterrey, and CONACULTA, Mexico, Institut Ramon Llull.

April 7-10th, 2010

Email abstract by December 15th, 2009 to:
Maria_Pizarro_Prada@brown.edu
Hispanic Studies, Box 1961, Brown University,
Providence, RI 02912
Registration: students ($75), professors ($100)